Topic: Are We Making A Difference?

For those who must confront the seemingly endless consequences of sexual violence (SV) in our society, it is difficult to tell if we're making any headway on the primary prevention side of the equation. How can we tell if progress is being made, when we're daily confronted with a never-ending flow of victims and perpetrators? Is SV increasing or decreasing? Is SV getting worse in Minnesota, in spite of all that we're doing?

Say what?

To address these questions we will present the temporal trends of sexual violence in Minnesota from five data sources—reports to police, arrests, hospital treatment, student survey, & crime survey. Our data suggests to us that SV may be decreasing in Minnesota. This should be good news.

But so what?

It appears that the utilization of services associated with SV is at best constant over time, and may be increasing. Our data suggests that SV is a contributor to the rapidly rising cost of Minnesota's health care system, as is evident from the rising cost of SV treatment.

And now what?

We're desk jockeys who stare at computer screens all day, crunching numbers.

Using the DIKA model (Data -> Information -> Knowledge -> ACTION), we need your insight and ideas in translating data into action.

Presenters:

Dorothy Gondwe, Research Analyst and Jon Roesler, Epidemiologist Supervisor,
Injury and Violence Prevention, Minnesota Department of Health

3. Stop It Before It Starts: Preventing Sexual and Domestic Violence Regional Trainings, April and May 2009

Stop It Before It Starts: Preventing Sexual and Domestic Violence

Presented By: Minnesota Men's Action Network: Alliance to Prevent Sexual and Domestic Violence

The U.S. Violence Against Women Act of 2005 states that “nearly 1/3 of American women report physical and sexual abuse by a husband or boyfriend at some point in their lives”.

Why are so many sweet little two year old boys growing up to be abusive males? What in the environment supports this kind of behavior? How has this harm become so rampant, so “normal”, in our society?

Come to a day-long training that provides some answers on sexual and domestic violence, its causes, and what you can do in your workplace, school, and community to stop it before it starts. There will be 5 regional trainings on:

Tuesday, April 28, 9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m., Mankato State University

Wednesday, April 29, 9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m., University of MN Rochester Campus

Monday, May 4, 9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m., Alexandria (location to be determined)

Monday, May 18, 9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m., Fond du Lac (location to be determined)

Tuesday, May 19, 9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m., Twin Cities (location to be determined)

This training will provide an overview of the problem of sexual and domestic violence in the morning sessions and then move to primary prevention solutions and action planning in the afternoon.

Who should attend: Business leaders, elected officials, educators and school administrators, human services personnel, health professionals, youth workers, law enforcement, school resource and DARE officers, members of faith communities, civic groups, victim services providers, and concerned others. Community Primary Prevention Teams are encouraged. Please promote this training to members of your community!

Presenters: Cordelia Anderson – Sensibilities Inc, Nicole Matthews – Minnesota Indian Women’s Sexual Assault Coalition, Lindsay Gullingsrud – Minnesota Coalition Against Sexual Assault, Chuck Derry – Gender Violence Institute, and Frank Jewell - Men as Peacemakers.

This training is free of charge and is supported by grants from the MN Department of Health, the MN Department of Public Safety, and the Bush Foundation.

The MN Men’s Action Network was initiated by the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) to build a public/private prevention effort that promotes male leadership. To this end, a collaborative effort between the MDH, Men As Peacemakers in Duluth and the Gender Violence Institute in Clearwater has been created to develop a network of men and male leaders involved in primary prevention practices. Current efforts are being supported by MDH, the Bush Foundation, the MN Department of Public Safety and Safe Haven Shelter in Duluth.

For more information contact: Frank Jewell, Men As Peacemakers, 218-727-1939, or Chuck Derry, Gender Violence Institute, 320-558-4510.

5. Conference: A Partnership Approach to Promote Health & Mental Health Literacy and to Reduce Disparities Among Immigrants & Refugees, May 22, 2009

Conference: A Partnership Approach to Promote Health & Mental Health Literacy and to Reduce Disparities Among Immigrants & Refugees, May 22, 2009

This conference will focus on health and mental health literacy and its impacts on disparities in immigrant and refugee communities. The primary goal is to bring together researchers, community practitioners and community members to share knowledge and information and to engage in partnerships to promote culturally appropriate approaches to dealing with health and mental health disparities, especially among immigrants and refugees in Minnesota.

Location: University's Continuing Education and Conference Center, St. Paul campus, 1890 Buford Avenue

Contact: Terry Lum

Sponsored by the School of Social Work and BlueCross BlueShield Minnesota.

6. Boys and Girls at Risk Conference: The Emerging Science of Gender Differences. Blending Science with Promising Practices, June 16-17, 2009

Boys and Girls at Risk Conference: The Emerging Science of Gender Differences. Blending Science with Promising Practices, June 16-17, 2009

This year's conference offers new and updated information from both research and promising practices in this newly emerging field. Because gender sensitivity cuts across a variety of disciplines, workshops from different professions are provided to foster cross-discipline training, exposure and create dialog among participants (see workshops).

7. National Organization of Sisters of Color Ending Sexual Assault

The National Organization of Sisters of Color Ending Sexual Assault (SCESA) engages in systems advocacy at the national level to ensure that policy initiatives aimed at addressing or having impact on violence against women (and specifically sexual assault) are:

- * Informed by the voices and experiences of Women of Color;
- * Responsive to and reflect the unique needs, critical issues and strengths of Communities of Color; and
- * Involve direction and critical input by Advocates of Color and Organizations by and for Communities of Color.

Further, we aim to provide resources and information to assist our communities in their efforts at systems advocacy within their local community and/or state.

SCESA also participates with other national organizations in collaborative efforts that focus on social change initiatives that address violence against women as well as other forms of oppression. Visit their website for more information.

8. Confronting Trafficking and Prostitution

The Sheila Wellstone Institute works with those most directly affected by the issues of domestic and sexual violence and empowers them with the skills to make a direct impact on policy decisions that affect their lives.

In February, SWI held an advocacy and organizing training specifically for survivors of trafficking and prostitution to connect them with policy makers and share their recommendations. Read more about Confronting Sexual Trafficking and Prostitution from Within the Movement to End Violence Against Women.

* Paul and Sheila's Legacy

Paul Wellstone and his wife, Sheila, made a significant impact on many policy issues during Paul's 12 years in the United States Senate. However, their work to combat the trafficking of women and girls has left an indelible mark.
