SVPN Meeting/Videoconference/Live Webstream: Engaging Spiritual Communities in Preventing Child Sexual Exploitation and Abuse, Wednesday, May 2, 2012

Engaging Spiritual Communities in Preventing Child Sexual Exploitation and Abuse

You are invited to explore a new model to engage spiritual communities in preventing child sexual exploitation and abuse: a Spiritual Communities Prevention Tree. You will experience how the model works, how it was used in three test communities, and how a spiritual community – yours or others with which you work – can make use of it.

Speakers:

Libby Bergman, Executive Director of the Family Enhancement Center, Minneapolis, MN and Amy Hartman, National Director of Cherish Our Children, Minneapolis, MN

Libby and Amy served as Co-Chairs for the Spiritual Communities Action Team in connection with the MN Department of Health – Sexual Violence Prevention Program.

Date: Wednesday, May 2, 10:30 a.m. – 1:30 p.m. (note: we're meeting on a Wednesday not a Friday this time)

Location: Snelling Office Park, Mississippi Room, 1645 Energy Park Drive, St. Paul, MN

5. 1st Annual Conference on Child Welfare and Dependency, Wednesday, April 25, 2012

The American Institute for the Advancement of Forensic Studies (AIAFS) would like to invite you to the 1st Annual Conference on Child Welfare and Dependency: Abandonment, Neglect and Abuse Including Scalded and Shaken Baby, and Other Forms of Child Abuse on April 25, 2012 from 8:30a.m.-4:30p.m. Check in for this event will begin at 7:30a.m.

Conference Description:
The 1st Annual Conference on Child Welfare and Dependency Law will provide an overview of the federal and state laws that govern the work of child protective services, the courts, and alternatives to dependency proceedings such as Child in Need of Services (CHINS), At Risk Youth (ARY), Truancy (BECCA in the State of Washington), Guardianships and Open Adoptions.

This conference will also focus on Minnesota specific laws related to the child welfare system. It will also identify and analyze the burning issues we are faced with today, including FASD and other areas involving children and parents with special needs. We will use case studies in order to gain insight as to the type of issues that arise in child welfare cases and the chronology of case processing and decision making deadlines.

In addition, the relationship between Child Welfare and Family Law will be discussed along with best practices, such as the use of Unified Family Law Courts, for dealing effectively with issues involving children caught up in child welfare non-offender cases, delinquency cases and family law litigation or a combination of these court proceedings.

Audience members will learn more about the various forms of child maltreatment and the risk factors associated with them. The presentation will include a panel of child welfare experts who will discuss issues that arise in child welfare investigations and the formal processes involved in court proceedings, as well as a Q & A session.

Professional Panel Discussion: During the later portion of the conference, there will be a professional panel discussion involving members from various professions that relate to the Child Welfare System. These professionals will be discussing their experience working within this system and answering questions from the audience.

The cost of this training is $50.00. Checks should be made out to the American Institute for the Advancement of Forensic Studies (AIAFS).

CEUs/CLEs/POST Credits Offered: 6.5 hours!

Location: Holiday Inn, St. Paul -I-94-East (3M area) 2201 Burns Avenue, St. Paul, MN

6. Demand the Change for Children Celebration, Saturday, April 28, 2012

10:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m., Mall of America Rotunda

Join us for this fun, inspirational, and family-friendly celebration to mobilize the community to end child sexual abuse and to celebrate children.

You don't usually hear "fun," "inspirational," and "family-friendly" in the same sentence as child sexual abuse, but child sexual abuse:

- * Is something we can easily talk about;
- * Is preventable; and
- * You can be part of the solution!

Be part of a movement dedicated to social justice and social change to stop the sexual harm before it is ever perpetrated. See how you/we can make a better world...beginning today!

Program and Entertainment

- * Emcee: T. Mychael Rambo (Emmy award winning actor, vocalist, arts educator, NAACP Image Award Nominee and affiliate professor at U of MN College of Theatre Arts and Dance)
- * Children's and Youth voices
- * Stories of Healing and Inspiring Acts of Prevention
- * Wishing Pond
- * Drumming
- * Children's Activities and Games

The Smooch! Project and Smooch! Photo Booth

Bonnie Fournier, founder of The Smooch! Project will be on hand for a Smooch! shoot, an international effort to collect 10,000 pictures of people showing affection to someone they love. Join us for this Smooch! shoot and:

- * Show what love looks like;
- * Demonstrate caring touch;
- * Show the power of consent;
- * Depict healthy relationships;
- * Get your picture at the Smooch! Photo Booth; and
- * Kiss a Frog!

Context

In the recently released National Intimate Partner and Sexual Violence Study, The Centers for Disease Control states: "Prevention efforts should start early by promoting healthy, respectful relationships in families...and emotionally supportive environments. These relationships provide a strong foundation for children, help them to adopt positive interactions based on respect and trust, and foster effective and non-violent communication." This statement summarizes our vision for the tone of this event.

10. OJP Conference on Crime and Victimization, May 30- June 1, 2012

The Department of Public Safety Office of Justice Programs (OJP) is pleased to sponsor the 2012 OJP Conference on Crime and Victimization.

The Conference theme is Technology: Transforming Our Lives, Transforming Our Work. This year's conference will be held May 30- June 1 at Cragun's Conference Center in Brainerd, Minnesota.

OJP provides leadership and resources to reduce crime in Minnesota, improve the functioning of the criminal justice system, and assist crime victims. This event brings professionals together to review current research, improve skills, share information, and network with peers.

The conference allows participants the opportunity to discuss and strategize ways to address barriers to providing high-quality services. Through efforts to form multi-disciplinary approaches and explore the root causes of these issues, we can work together to combat the cycle of violence, crime and victimization.

Registration Fees, Sessions, and Lodging Accommodations
For more information on registration fees, sessions, and lodging accommodations, visit ojp.dps.mn.gov.

Resource Fair
During the OJP Conference on Crime and Victimization, resource tables are set up in the Sports Centre to give programs an opportunity to share information about their mission and services. This year the conference committee is again offering resource space at no charge for agencies that would like a table to display their information. Resource fair participants will have an 8-foot skirted table for display and materials.

If your agency would like to participate, complete the resource fair request form and fax to Rachel Sibley at 651-770-5506 by Friday, May 4.

Awards
The Distinguished Service Award will be presented at the conference on May 30. The Distinguished Service Award acknowledges outstanding service to crime victims by a paid professional.

If you would like to submit a nominee, please complete the award nomination form. The deadline for award nominations is Friday, April 6.

Registration is available online at www.regonline.com/ojpconference

12. Equal Access, Equal Say: Achieving Health Equity for All Young People

Change – the one word that perhaps best epitomizes adolescence. Changing bodies, changing schools, changing friends... but for young people today, unstable social conditions and economic turmoil magnify the typical transitions of adolescence.

Tough economic realities have affected many families – creating the need to find new jobs and perhaps to move to new cities or towns, temporary housing, or even homeless shelters. And many of our young people face great risk and vulnerabilities far beyond the norm – those in child welfare and juvenile justice systems, recently immigrated and refugee youth, young people with chronic illness and disability, to name a few.

Changing times create demands and challenges for any person of any age but especially for adolescents. So, perhaps now, more than ever, young people need to tap their innate resilience – to have the capacity to bounce back, even from substantial vulnerabilities and risk. They need an array of internal strengths and external supports – core protective factors that help young people beat the odds and rise above the risk.

What helps young people thrive in these times of change? During the 2012 Summer Institute in Adolescent Health, visit settings that are successfully supporting adolescents in times of change. Talk with young people and their program leaders along with health service providers who have walked the talk of resilience and youth development in creative and surprising ways. Learn strategies for assuring supportive environments, sustaining relationships, and creating seamless services. Gather resources and gain new skills in effectively communicating these ideas to others.

Who should attend?

All who work with young people - teachers, coaches, and administrators; nurses, physicians, nutritionists, psychologists, social workers, counselors, and youth workers; religious leaders and policy makers.

The institute will be held at the Minnesota Department of Health, Snelling Office Park Building, July 30th-August 1st, 2012. Graduate credit from the University of Minnesota and Hamline University is available for this course.

13. The National Plan to Prevent Child Sexual Abuse & Exploitation has been revised and reprinted!

The report shows that Child Sexual Abuse/Exploitation often happens in conjunction with other types of abuse and violence, and can have long-term, psychological impacts.

The National Plan identifies action steps in several key areas, including research, ending the public demand for sexual exploitation, increasing public awareness and collaborative practices and funding. Link to: www.preventtogether.org/nationalplan2012

14. The Impact of Pornography on Children, Youth and Culture

Anderson, C. (2012) The Impact of Pornography on Children, Youth and Culture. Fitchburg, MA: NEARI Press. <http://bookstore.nearipress.org/index.php/the-impact-of-pornography-on-children-youth-and-culture.htm>

Abstract: Rapidly changing technology has dramatically changed the reach of pornography. Unfortunately, today, pornography is often the prime source of sex education for our children and youth in America. Unfortunate because the content of this pornography is degrading and body punishing AND it is being marketed as normal.

This booklet offers a deeply researched and shocking overview of the impact of pornography on children and youth. The author also describes the clear shifts in our culture that demonstrates how yesterday's pornography is part of today's mainstream advertising for children. Also provided are clear information and resources about what can be done to counter the harm to our children and teens and offers practical tips about how to focus on and promote sexual and relational health.

15. Exploring the links: Eating Disorders & Sexual Violence

Exploring the links: Eating Disorders & Sexual Violence by The National Sexual Violence Resource Center (March 2012)

This online resource collection offers information on the intersections of sexual violence and eating disorders. Recent research and practice efforts have shown links between sexual victimization during childhood or adolescence and developing an eating disorder.

To provide more informed services, people working in anti-violence movements can review the resources in this online resource collection on sexual violence, trauma, and eating disorders.

16. Understanding the causal factors for rape builds the most effective prevention programs

Dear Engaged Bysander: I recently heard the keynote from the annual MASOC/MATSA conference and was moved by the research Ray Knight presented. I know that sounds odd to be "moved" by research, but I was. It was a fabulous presentation and what I loved about it was that he challenged us to base our prevention programs on research evidence – more than just good ideas.

Knight argued that all prevention programs need to be focused on the causal factors of rape and not the correlates. What does that mean in plain English? If we want to be successful at stopping any social problem or disease we need to look at the factors that CAUSE that problem. As an example, he showed a great cartoon of a caveman with tons of children saying "How do we prevent pregnancy when we don't even know the cause of it?"

He then presented a model which offers a separation of the causal risk factors and the correlates to these factors. He suggests that prevention programs which focus on these causal risk factors will be more successful in the long run. The causal risk factors in his study included:

- Hypersexuality
- Callous/Unemotional
- Antisocial behavior

The correlates that he specifically studied included:

- Alcohol use

- Distorted perceptions
- Rape attitudes
- Pornography use

As he went into more detail, Knight offered compelling arguments that we as professionals need to read ALL of the literature. In this case there are often very distinct realms that rarely share knowledge – those who work with sex offenders and those who work on college campuses.

Knight also demonstrated that the risk factors for adult rapists are not completely aligned with the risk factors for child molesters. In particular, this showed up in rape attitudes and distorted perceptions. So we need to be sure that we don't use the same programs with college students as we may use in a program for children and youth.
