1. Sexual Violence Prevention Network (SVPN) Meeting: "Management, Treatment and Prevention...a Conversation about People who have Committed Sex Offenses," St. Paul, MN, November 8, 2013

"Management, Treatment and Prevention...a Conversation about People who have Committed Sex Offenses"

We are all interested in ending sexual violence. We know that ending the harm is high on the agendas of those working with victim/survivors, those working in sex offender treatment; and those running for public office! It has rarely been so clear about how much we all want to end sexual violence. Yet our public dialog seems to indicate that, in spite of our efforts, we have come only slightly closer to that goal than we were 35 years ago when rape crisis centers opened in Minnesota; 22 years ago when civil commitment began; when the sex offender sentencing guidelines grid was developed; or when sex offender probation caseloads were decreased, or when funding for intensive supervision began. Public outcry has driven us to put many resources into the management of those who have caused harm yet it appears we may be missing the mark – if that mark is about ending sexual violence.

The SVPN meeting will feature a dialog with:
Eric Janus, Dean of William Mitchell College of Law
Jeanne Ronayne, Director of Victim Services of Dodge Fillmore and Olmsted Counties and Haley Fox, Clinical Director of the MN Sex Offender Program

We will explore how effective, reasoned and evidence based approaches to the management and treatment of those who have committed sex offenses blends with emerging conversations about preventing the perpetration of sexual violence. We want to support thoughtful, respectful and productive public discourse that ultimately may help us prevent child sexual abuse and sexual violence.

Agenda:
10:30 a.m. – 11:00 a.m. – Registration and Networking
11:00 a.m. – 1:00 p.m. – Presentation
1:00 – 1:30 p.m. – Resource Sharing

Registration: Registration for this meeting is free but required: <http://www.health.state.mn.us/svp/Implement/network/registration/index.cfm?ocMealID=67>

NEW LOCATION FOR THIS MEETING: William Mitchell College of Law, 875 Summit Avenue, St. Paul, William Mitchell auditorium room 245 (2nd floor)

Webinar - No More Harm: Untested Sexual Assault Kits and Communities of Color, October 29, 2013

Hear from Condoncia Brade from Sisters of Color Ending Sexual Assault and Debi Cain from the Michigan Domestic and Sexual Violence Prevention and Treatment Board as they discuss key issues that are intended to broaden the perspective of those who work with sexual assault survivors in communities of color. They will address the unique challenges and provide strategies for working with survivors of color when reopening years or decades-old sexual assault cases when evidence was only recently tested. 3. Breaking Free's 4th Annual Benefit Breakfast, November 2, 2013

Breaking Free's 4th Annual Benefit Breakfast, November 2, 2013

FREE EVENT (RSVP REQUIRED). Last year, with the help of many table captains, over 800 people attended our 3rd Annual Benefit Breakfast to learn more about the important work that we do to help survivors of sex trafficking. Thousands of dollars were raised to provide housing, education, and hope to abused and exploited women and girls right here in the Twin Cities. This year, our theme "You Are The Key" will explore the concept that everyone holds a key to unlock the solution to this issue. Location: Crowne Plaza Riverfront St. Paul: 11 Kellogg Blvd E.

4. FREE Weekend Workshops: Using the Arts to Tell your Story, November 8-9, 2013 and May 2-3, 2014

FREE Weekend Workshops: Using the Arts to Tell your Story, November 8-9, 2013 and May 2-3, 2014

As part of MNCASA's commitment to honor and engage the voices of those affected by sexual violence in its efforts to prevent sexual violence, MNCASA is providing free weekend Using the Arts to Tell Your Story workshops. The next two weekends will be Friday and Saturday, November 8-9, 2013 and May 2-3, 2014.

Both workshops will be held at Dev Jam Studios in South Minneapolis. Participants of the Spring 2013 workshop described it as empowering, inspiring, supportive, reaffirming, and healing. Workshop participants are guided through movement and writing exercises to explore their own experiences to generate hope, healing, change, and help prevent child sexual abuse.

The workshops take place Friday night from 6:30 to 9:00 p.m. and Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. They will be led by Cordelia Anderson, who understands child sexual abuse and the power of stories for prevention. Cordelia has more than 30 years of experience combining her passion for the arts with prevention of sexual abuse and exploitation. The workshops are free but participants are responsible for their own travel and lodging costs.

5. Webinar - Prevalence of Adolescent Sexual Violence Perpetration: New Study and Implications for Prevention, November 13, 2013

Webinar - Prevalence of Adolescent Sexual Violence Perpetration: New Study and Implications for Prevention, November 13, 2013

As we seek strategies to prevent rape, we need to examine not only how to prevent sexual violence victimization, but we need strategies to prevent sexual violence perpetration. And to develop strategies to prevent sexual violence perpetration, we need to know about the perpetrators themselves. Yet, little information is known about youth perpetrators.

A recent study in JAMA Pediatrics provides new insight. The study found that nearly 1 in 10 youths reported some type of sexual violence perpetration in their lifetimes. Join one of the study's authors to discuss the study and to explore implications for prevention. 6. Webinar - How Can We Measure Sexual Health? A Perspective from the Sexual Health Rankings Project" November 21, 2013

Webinar - How Can We Measure Sexual Health? A Perspective from the Sexual Health Rankings Project" November 21, 2013

We have intricate and sophisticated ways to measure the presence of, or the absence of, sexually transmitted diseases, not to mention unintended pregnancy, contraception use, and intimate partner violence. But how do we measure sexual health in ways that are not just the absence of disease? The World Health Organization has a definition of sexual health that emphasizes wellness, accounts for the determinants of health, and encompasses human rights, sexual expression and identity, and sexual pleasure.

But how can that be measured? Join this webinar to hear a perspective from the Sexual Health Rankings project, delivered by Martin Downs, MPH, lead author and researcher of Sexual Health Rankings, 2012.

FREE 4-hour training to end violence and oppression, November 15, 19 and December 6, 2013

On behalf of the MN Alliance Against Violence, we are pleased to invite you to participate in a FREE 4-hour training to learn about a program that engages communities to end violence and oppression. The MN Alliance Against Violence is a collective of individuals and organizations who have come together to address violence and oppression in the state of Minnesota. The long term intent is to have a framework in place to engage communities to work together to increase awareness surrounding violence and oppression – and – to identify how our collective efforts can provide a safer and healthier state for every Minnesotan.

In an effort to accomplish this, the MN Alliance Against Violence has entered into a partnership with Connect. The training and curriculum that Connect created, helps to lay the groundwork for positive, healthy relationships between coworkers, neighbors and community members through shared goals, shared knowledge and mutual respect. To learn more about Connect, please cut and paste the following web address into your browser. <http://www.gogamariessconnect.org/>

The Connect trainings will be held on the following dates and locations:

November 15th from 9:00 a.m. – 1:00 p.m. held in Bloomington (hosted by Cornerstone)

November 19th from 9:00 am – 1:00 p.m. held in Faribault (hosted by Hope Center)

December 6th from 9:00 a.m. – 1:00 p.m. held in Blaine (hosted by Alexandra House)

To register, call Deb Schroeder at Connect: 320-251-7203 or email at DebraS@gogamariess.org. Or contact Pat Wagner, Project Manager for the MN Alliance; 651.554.0357; pwagner@ctrackoflife.com

11. New Resources from Futures Without Violence

New Resources from Futures Without Violence

We're pleased to announce the launch of a new online toolkit, a practical and interactive resource for anyone engaged in teen dating violence prevention. The site shares the lessons we learned while working on Start Strong, a national program of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation in collaboration with Blue Shield of California Foundation. Having successfully completed those four years of healthy relationships and teen dating violence prevention programming with middle school students in 11 communities across the country, we have a lot to share with you!

Visit this new site to find:

The facts about why middle school matters for preventing teen dating violence
Start Strong's key elements of success
Quotes and video interviews from experts, leaders, and youth
Downloadable materials and links to other resources

Middle school is a pivotal time for youth to learn about healthy relationships, and successful programming takes passion and creativity. Please consider sharing this resource with your network. In the spirit of openness and collaboration, we hope you will take full advantage of and pass along this resource. And as a field, as we learn and improve, let's continue to share our knowledge and experiences with each other. To access the online toolkit, please visit <http://startstrong.futureswithoutviolence.org>

15. New Report: Addressing the Intersection of HIV/AIDS, Violence against Women and Girls, and Gender-Related Health Disparities

New Report: Addressing the Intersection of HIV/AIDS, Violence against Women and Girls, and Gender-Related Health Disparities

More than 1 in 3 women in the United States has experienced rape, physical violence, or stalking by an intimate partner in her lifetime; of these women, 69% report experiencing intimate partner violence at age 25 or younger, and 22% experience IPV for the first time as girls between the ages of 11 and 17 years. Furthermore, approximately 280,000 women in the United States were living with HIV in 2009, with an estimated 15% unaware of their status.

Women account for 20% of new HIV infections in the United States, with over three-quarters of these new infections occurring among black and Latina women. By themselves, these statistics represent a compelling call to action, but the particular prevalence of intimate partner violence among women living with HIV further reinforces the need to address the intersection of HIV/AIDS and violence against women and girls: 56% of women living with HIV, compared to the national prevalence of 36%, have experienced violence by an intimate partner.

16. Article: Childhood Trauma linked to Chronic Disease in Adulthood: Implications on the Medical and Economic Burden of Human Trafficking

Article: Childhood Trauma linked to Chronic Disease in Adulthood: Implications on the Medical and Economic Burden of Human Trafficking

Emotional, mental, and physical trauma during childhood are correlated with higher risk for many diseases that occur during adulthood, including coronary heart disease, depression, autoimmune disease, and drug addiction. The Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACE) Study, a long-term study spanning over a decade representing middle-class urban America, revealed invaluable data linking child abuse to the risk of chronic diseases.

Children and adolescents who are victims of sex or labor trafficking experience the same types of trauma, but to a greater extent and are thus at elevated risk for chronic diseases later in life.

They are a group to which the ACE Study directly applies and represent a population that will continue to add to the economic burden of chronic diseases on society, if the proper public health attention is not given to this wide spread problem.

Wilder Foundation Blog: Statewide Homeless Study Results

The path to adulthood is steep and rocky for some youth. Youth transitioning into adulthood are at increased risk for homelessness. Our study found ages 16 and 18 were the most common ages to first experience homelessness. Most homeless youth come with childhood histories of trauma and long-term health issues.

About half were physically abused, 1 out of 3 neglected, and 1 out of 4 sexually abused as a child. More than half (58%) have had at least one placement in a foster home, group home, or facility for persons with emotional, behavioral, or mental health problems.
