1. Next SVPN Meeting: Strategic Communications for Action Against Sexual Violence, November 4, 2005

Please join the MDH Sexual Violence Prevention Program and partners for the next Sexual Violence Prevention Network meeting, 10:30-2:30 p.m., November 4, 2005.

Prevention Topic: Strategic Communications for Action Against Sexual Violence

Presenter: Michael Goldberg, ActionMedia

This mini-workshop will help those of us working in the field of sexual violence prevention to recognize the many forms of media at our disposal, and to apply our communication resources strategically and effectively by focusing on real world results. The workshop will provide a simple template of questions to guide us in developing our communications messages and strategies, and give us practice in getting our prevention messages across to the media, community leaders, friends, colleagues, and others who can make a difference in preventing sexual violence.

2. New Research Brief from Child Trends: Sex Between Young Teens and Older Individuals is Linked to Nonvoluntary Sexual Intercourse and Lower Contraceptive Use

New findings show sexual activity between teens aged 15 and younger with individuals who are three or more years older are correlated with risky health outcomes including unprotected sex and teenage childbearing. Also, while most are voluntary, these relationships are more likely to be nonvoluntary than other teen sexual relationships.

The report cites several risk factors associated with these sexual relationships, including that the youngest sexually experienced teens were the most likely to have had sex with an older individual. Specifically, almost two-thirds (65 percent) of females aged 13 or younger at first sex had intercourse with an individual three or more years older compared with 53 percent of females aged 14 at first sex, and 41 percent of females aged 15 at first sex. Other factors associated with sex between young teens and older individuals include: being female, lower parent education, growing up in a family without two biological/adoptive parents, and being a child of a teen mother.

Child Trends' latest research brief, Sex Between Young Teens and Older Individuals: A Demographic Portrait, draws from recently released data from the National Survey of Family Growth, 2002. A news release is also available.

5. Violence Prevention Alliance: Building Global Commitment for Violence Prevention

Just published by the World Health Organization, *Violence Prevention Alliance: Building Global Commitment for Violence Prevention* policy paper sets out the conceptual framework, structure and goals that guide the Violence Prevention Alliance, of which CDC is a member.

The paper is divided into two sections: Introducing the Violence Prevention Alliance, and Preventing violence before it occurs. The first section presents the basics of the Alliance, including the reasons behind its creation, the contribution of the health sector, and its scope, goals and working methods. The second section describes the global magnitude of interpersonal violence, discusses its known causes, risk factors and consequences, and presents theoretical tools to organize our understanding of interpersonal violence.
