1. Web Seminar on Evaluating Sexual Violence Prevention Education in Schools, Wednesday, November 16, 2005

The third Web seminar in the Working with Schools for Rape Prevention and Education series will focus on how to evaluate sexual violence prevention education in school programs. The speakers will talk about the approaches they have used and the importance of planning for the program goals that will be used during the outcome evaluation.

Working with Schools for Rape Prevention and Education

November 16th, 1:00-3:00 pm EST

Presenters

Robert Goodman, University of Pittsburgh; Lori Hart, GaDuGi SafeCenter, KS; and Nicole Littler, Metropolitan Organization to Counter Sexual Assault, MO.

Register for the Web conference at no cost through The National Center for Injury Prevention and Control.

What is a Web conference?

A web conference is an opportunity to attend a workshop by calling on your phone and watching a presentation from your computer screen using only your regular internet connection. If for some reason you are unable to join on your computer, you can print out slides of presentations and listen along on the phone.

2. The Basics on Rape Behind Bars

Prisoner rape is a problem that affects large numbers of men, women, and youth.

A recent study of prisons in four Midwestern states found that approximately one in five male inmates reported a pressured or forced sex incident while incarcerated. About one in ten male inmates reported that that they had been raped.

Rates for women, who are most likely to be abused by male staff members, vary greatly among institutions. In one facility, 27 percent of women reported a pressured or forced sex incident, while in another facility, seven percent of women reported sexual abuse. Youth in detention are also extremely vulnerable to abuse. Research has shown that juveniles incarcerated with adults are five times more likely to report being victims of sexual assault than youth in juvenile facilities, and the suicide rate of juveniles in adult jails is 7.7 times higher than that of juvenile detention centers. As states try growing numbers of juveniles as adults, the risk of sexual abuse increases.

3. North Country Film Inspires Action

Academy Award winner Charlize Theron stars in North Country, a powerful film about one woman's strength and determination to escape the harassment and abuse that she encounters in the workplace. Participant Productions, one of the producers of North Country, has developed the social action campaign Stand Up, inspired by the film, to end sexual harassment and assault. You can take action to help end discrimination and violence in your community. Stand Up for women's rights and equality by learning more from Participate.net.

6. Minutes - Sexual Violence Prevention Network Meeting, November 4, 2005, St. Paul, MN

Attendees from the November 4, 2005 SVPN meeting: Communications for Action Against Sexual Violence

Michael Goldberg from ActionMedia addressed the many forms of media available, and ways to apply communication resources strategically and effectively by focusing on real world results. The workshop provided questions to guide us in developing our communications messages and strategies for getting our prevention messages across to the media, community leaders, friends, colleagues, and others who can make a difference in preventing sexual violence.

Planning questions

1. What needs to happen?
2. Who can make it happen?
3. What story do they need to hear?
4. Who should they hear it from?
5. How can we tell them?

Current initiatives include 1) expanding training within the ELCA, 2) expanding into other denominations, 3) the challenge of including the corporate community as a faith-based organization. Wanting to connect with others who 1) focus on grass roots and community education, mobilization, 2) are considering the issue of normalization, 3) have ways of dealing with the demand side of CSEC, 4) have prevention (CSEC) materials to enhance what we already have, to share what we have created for both youth and adults.

I am part of an MDH sexual violence prevention project team. My focus areas: sexual violence prevention and positive youth development, plus SVP and teen pregnancy. One of the things I'm working on in this project is to develop training and resources to help youth workers, sexuality educators, and teen pregnancy workers to address sexual violence and prevention in their work. Another aspect of this is to seek ways organizations might make changes to institutionalize addressing sexual violence and prevention into their ongoing work effectively/successfully.
