5. Study Reveals Unique Issues Faced by Deaf Victims of Sexual Assault

Sexual assault victims who are deaf face unique issues not encountered by the hearing, according to a recent study funded by the National Institute of Justice.[1] (<http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/nij/journals/257/deaf-victims.html#note1#note1>) Researcher Jennifer Obinna and colleagues at the Minneapolis Council on Crime and Justice interviewed 51 deaf citizens, 15 service providers (both deaf and hearing), and 10 police officers in their investigation of the impact of sexual assault on members of the deaf community.[2] (<http://www.ojp.usdoj.gov/nij/journals/257/deaf-victims.html#note2#note2>) In their final report on the project, the researchers offered recommendations for improving the relationship between law enforcement and the deaf community. 6. Community Tool Box

The Community Tool Box is an on-line resource providing over 7,000 pages of practical information to support work in promoting community health and development. This web site is created and maintained by the Work Group on Health Promotion and Community Development at the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kansas (U.S.A). The core of the Tool Box is the "topic sections" that include practical guidance for the different tasks necessary to promote community health and development, including sections on leadership, strategic planning, community assessment, grant writing, and evaluation to name a few. Each section includes a description of the task, advantages of doing it, step-by-step guidelines, examples, checklists of points to review, and training materials. 7. SIECUS Sexual Education Library

The SIECUS SexEdLibrary is known to be the most comprehensive online sex ed resource in the nation. Human sexuality is like no other subject in our educational system today. Not only should the content be up to date and relevant, but the teaching tools can be as important as the information itself. SexEdLibrary is designed to give all of that—and more. <http://www.sexedlibrary.org/>

8. Images of Human Trafficking - Sexual Exploitation

Trafficking in persons is modern-day slavery, involving victims who are forced, defrauded or coerced into labor or sexual exploitation. Annually, about 600,000 to 800,000 people -- mostly women and children -- are trafficked across national borders which does not count millions trafficked within their own countries. The U.S. Department of State has created a photo gallery of images of human trafficking, link to: <http://www.gtippphotos.state.gov/gtip.cfm?type=image&galleryID=542&id=1>
