

Non-Municipal Public Water Systems in the Seven-County Metropolitan Area

SOURCE WATER PROTECTION

About the data

This table below shows the non-municipal public water systems (PWSs) in the metropolitan area, listed by their PWS identification (PWSID) number, their water system type, their location, and the geologic vulnerability of their water supply well. The “Vulnerable Well” column indicates if the PWS has at least one well classified by Minnesota Department of Health as vulnerable.

A community water system provides water to the public in their primary living space—where people live and sleep—homes, apartments, nursing homes, prisons, etc. For more information, see Community Public Water Supply (<https://www.health.state.mn.us/communities/environment/water/com/index.htm>).

Noncommunity water systems provide water to the public in places other than their homes—where people work, gather and play. Transient water systems are facilities that regularly serve an average of 25 or more people per day for at least 60 days per year. Nontransient water systems can include facilities such as schools, offices, factories, and child care facilities that serve at least 25 of the same people over six months of the year. For more information, see Noncommunity Public Water Supply (<https://www.health.state.mn.us/communities/environment/water/noncom>).
