Project Information

A. Project Purpose

The Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) in collaboration with the Minnesota Department of Public Safety (DPS), Minnesota Department of Human Services (DHS), and the Council on Asian Pacific Minnesotans (CAPM) are creating a multidisciplinary working group to address violence against Asian women and children. 15 members will be appointed to represent the following groups: advocates, survivors, service providers, community leaders, city and county attorneys, city officials, law enforcement, and health professionals. The working group is charged to study the nature, scope, and prevalence of violence against Asian women and children in Minnesota, including domestic violence, trafficking, international abusive marriage, stalking, sexual assault and other forms of violence.

As a lead agency, MDH is hiring a contractor who will work with MDH to serve as the main coordinator to be responsible for the working group activities and submitting a final report that meets the requirements written in the Statute Article 8, Section 58.

The contractor will be tasked to work closely with MDH to support the working group members to conduct research on the prevalence and the impact of violence against Asian women and children in Minnesota through qualitative and quantitative data gathering and analysis. In addition, the contractor, with guidance of the Working Group will produce a report with recommendations on how to address violence against Asian women and children in the Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) community in Minnesota.

B. Background Information

In its report “Global and regional estimates of violence against women: Prevalence and health effects of intimate partner violence and non-partner sexual violence” (2013), the World Health Organization (WHO) estimated that 1 in 3 (35.6%) women throughout the world will experience physical and/or sexual violence by a partner or sexual violence by a non-partner. WHO declared violence against women a “significant public health problem of epidemic proportion, requiring urgent actions.” In the United States, 41-61% of Asian women report experiencing physical and/or sexual violence by an intimate partner during their lifetime (Raj & Silverman 2002). Among 15,000 Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) community members surveyed from a report released by the Asian and Pacific Islander Institute on Domestic Violence, 36% reported intimate partner violence and 81% of women reported experiencing at least one form of intimate partner violence (domination/controlling/psychological, physical, and/or sexual abuse) in the year prior to the study. Additionally, 28.5% of Asian women report knowing another woman who had experienced abuse by her in-laws. In some Asian families, male and female in-laws exert physical, sexual and psychological abuse.

The Working Group on Violence against Asian Women and Children Project

Request for Proposals

Asian American and Pacific Islanders is a very diverse and one of the fastest growing ethnic groups nationally and in Minnesota. 60% of AAPI community members are foreign born and 30% of them speak limited or no English at all. In addition, AAPI members span every immigration status from refugee, immigrant to aslyee. Because this community is so diverse, it has been challenging to collect data on intimate physical and sexual violence due to the factors such as fear of deportation, stigma, privacy and shame from the cultural and gender positions in the countries of origin that prevent women and children from accessing support services.

Furthermore, many AAPI children are exposed to and or witness family violence. According to the Asian Family Violence Report released by the Asian Task Force against Domestic Violence in 2000 in Massachusetts, 70% of Cambodians, 61% of Chinese, 80% of Koreans, 79% of South Asians, and 72% of Vietnamese men and women reported being hit regularly as children. 28% of Cambodians, 18% of Chinese, 30% of Koreans, 8% of South Asians, and 27% of Vietnamese witnessed their fathers regularly hit their mothers. Children who grow up in families where there is violence may suffer a range of both behavioral and emotional disturbances according to WHO,. These can also be associated with perpetrating or experiencing violence later in life.

During the 2015 Minnesota Legislative Session, funds were appropriated to establish the Working Group on Violence against Asian Women and Children. This working group will guide the collection of data from Minnesota AAPI communities on violence against Asian women and children and produce a report for the legislature with recommendations on how to address violence against AAPI women and children. The Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) is leading the effort in collaboration with the Minnesota Department of Human Services, Department of Public Safety and the Council on Asian and Pacific Minnesotans to address this serious public health issue.

Minnesota Department of Health - Center for Health Equity (CHE) was established to make advancing health equity an essential goal for a healthy Minnesota and the work of MDH. The Center engages communities to address structural racism; advances health equity in all of MDH's activities such as collecting, analyzing and communicating health data, grant-making, engaging citizens in decision-making and focusing on creating health for all Minnesotans through a health in all policies approach.

The selected contractor will be required to use the health equity lens described in the “Advancing Health Equity in Minnesota - Report to the Legislature 2014” while working with the Working Group on Violence against Asian Women and Children, engaging the Asian and Pacific Islander community and broader communities in specific activities and in making recommendations on policy, systems and environmental changes to stop violence against Asian women and children in Minnesota

C. Goals and Tasks

The contractor will work closely with MDH to support the Working Group on Violence against Asian Women and Children to reach the following goals:

- 1) Using health equity lens and community engagement approach, establish baseline information on the nature, scope and prevalence of violence against Asian women and children in Minnesota through qualitative and quantitative data gathering and analysis.
- 2) Produce a report with recommendations related to policy, systems and environmental changes on how to address and prevent violence against Asian women and children in Minnesota.

Key deliverables of this project are as follows:

- Convene and facilitate 3 - 4 working group meetings in the contract period, take notes and follow up on the tasks from the meetings during the contract period
- Using culturally sensitive and linguistically appropriate methods, collect qualitative and quantitative data on violence against Asian women and children in Minnesota via community surveys, focus groups and or individual interviews.
- Conduct analysis of the data and make recommendations to policy makers, stakeholders and broad communities
- Write a report that will meet the requirements outlined by the Minnesota Statute Article 8, Section 58.
- Submit a final report to MDH by December 31, 2016.

In studying the nature, scope, and prevalence of violence against Asian women and children, the contractor may choose to do one, some, or all of the following:

- Conduct a needs assessment of culturally and linguistically appropriate programs and interventions
- Identify barriers in delivering services to Asian women and children
- Identify promising prevention and intervention strategies in addressing violence against Asian women and children
- Propose mechanisms to collect and monitor data on violence against Asian women and children in Minnesota
- Evaluate the adequacy and effectiveness of existing support programs

All materials submitted in response to this RFP will become property of the State and will become public record in accordance with Minnesota Statutes, section 13.591, after the evaluation process is completed.
