

Act Quickly To Receive COVID-19 Medications: Transcript

[upbeat music]

[onscreen text] Have you heard?

[narration] If you are sick with COVID-19, getting medication can help your body fight the virus so you get better faster.

The medications, which include monoclonal antibody treatment, are for people who test positive and have mild to moderate symptoms. They can keep you from getting so sick that you have to go to the hospital.

You can only receive medication within the first 10 days of having COVID-19 symptoms, so it's important to act quickly.

Visit health.mn.gov/covidmeds or talk with your health care provider to see if you may be eligible and to find a clinic near you. You can also call the Minnesota Helpline at 1-800-657-3504, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., to get connected to a clinic.
