

Everyone has two adrenal glands. They sit on top of our kidneys. The adrenal glands make hormones: cortisol and aldosterone. People born with congenital adrenal hyperplasia don't make these hormones, so they take medication to help.

